A Brand New Scavenger Hunt event in Nashville!

William Edward West, artist, worked in the studio of Thomas Sully in Philadelphia. He excelled especially in portraiture, and in Europe executed likenesses of Washington Irving, Lord Byron, and the Countess Guiecioli, Percy B. Shelly, Mrs. Hemans and many other well-known persons. His figure-pieces include "Pride of the Village," "Annette de l'Abre," "Confessional" (belonging to the New York Historical Society), "the Toilet, and "Judith and Holofernes."

Tragically, William died in Nashville in 1857. But some people (in Baltimore) seem to think otherwise. They insist he settled down in Baltimore and eventually passed away there in 1859.

DON'T LET THEM TAKE OUR HISTORY!

SCAVENGER HUNT

The common belief is that Mr. West died and was buried in Baltimore in 1859.

But we know the truth and on November 3, you're going to PROVE it!

Using data and clues (set up by the makers of the Escape Game), gather evidence and figures to tell whether William West was indeed buried here at the Nashville City Cemetery
